ROYAL COOKS.—Now that many ladies of the highest society in France show much interest and perseverance in the acquisition of the highest society in the acquisition of the acquisition o the set and perseverance in the acquestion of the set of cookery, it may, perhaps, be interesting to recall some gone by celebrities who were avowed cooks. Prince Talleyrand was accurate to visit his larder every morning.—
The lovely and unfortunate Marie Antoicotte, when at Triange, delighted in making her are greater and sheaper. The history of the mand go through to Round Hill without own creams and cheeses. The history of the Malmaison omelette is not known to most. The Empress Josephine was one day amulang beise f with her ladies of honor with the manufacture of an omelette, and, at the mos interesting moment of the operation, Napole in entered unexpectedly, much to the em barrassment of the Empress, who held the frying pan in her hand, but dare not attempt to throwit over. With grim self satisfaction the fax Court House. great general took it from her saying, "I will show you ma bonne amie, how to turn an omelette; this is the bivouac fashion." He gave the pau that little twist so well known to all cooks, but the disobedient omelette, instead of returning to the frying pan, fell right into the fire, to the great delight of Josephine, who said, with one of her lich smiles, "Your majesty is not at the bivouac now; you understand much better how to gain battles than to cock omelettes."

INFLUENZA.—Dr. D. H. Beckwith, in a parer published in the Cincinnati Medical Advance says: "That theory which commends itself to my acceptance is that a deficiency of come in the atmosphere will cause influenza, catarrh, hay fever, cholers, scarlatina and diphtheris, while an increase of czone in the air will increase bronchial and pulmonary disease. Ozone is defined to be 'oxygen in an active or highly negative state.' Ozone is a constituent in the air, and is remarkable in its properties. It has an odor similar to a spot that has been struck by light ning. In quantities-that is, an excess in the atmosphere-'it will attack the mucous membrane of the throat, nose, mouth and bronchia,' so says Hartly. Short says, in his 'Chronelogi-cal History of Weather:' Thick ill-smelling fogs are preceded by attacks of epidemic catarrh.'
